Charolais arrived on the Carlson farm in Jan, 1984 with two bred cows. A week later he bought eight more. "I just got tired of my brother's Charolais-cross calves having heavier weaning weights than mine," Carlson recalled.

Currently the purebred herd runs about 60 breeding females and he still maintains a 40 head commercial Char-cross cowherd.

Stressing the benefits of a family operation with his wife and children, Carlson farms about 2,000 acres and also is part of a larger farming corporation with brothers Lynden and Michael.

Like his children, Frank Cholak himself got an early start in the cattle and Charolais business. In the late 1960's he was working as a cost accountant for Sherritt Fertilizer at nearby Fort Saskatchewan while still helping out on his parents' (Alex and Helen) farm, which included commercial Herefords and Holsteins. The first Charolais arrived via a horse trade involving bred commercial cows. One of the Balck Baldie cows threw a pure white percentage Charolais calf. From then on they A.I.'ed to many different breeds, but the Char-cross calves "seemed to grow better". Following the breeding experiment, the enthusiasm for Charolais grew. Circle Cee added their first fullblood Charolais bull in the early 1970's.

Wayne Clews was born at Pangman in southern Saskatchewan on the farm homesteaded by his grandfather in 1905. After completing high school he immediately enrolled in the College of Agriculture at Saskatoon.

His start in the cattle business was the purchase of a big roan cow for $100. The first yellow cattle appeared on 4C Charolais Farm as a result of a purebred Charolais bull leased for 22 days. That bull left 10 calves out of 19 cows. The steer calves were fed out with the Hereford sired contemporaries and when shipped to St.Boniface market netted $79 per head over the contemporary's average. This made believers in Charolais out of the Clews.

Here at Craigmyle where the dry, flat east country of Alberta begins, it seems a far cry from the small Ontario town of Kincardine on the shores of Lake Huron, where I was born and raised. Being a town boy, there was not much opportunity to become acquainted with farming, but by working in summer holidays and then for a short time on a farm after my schooling, I managed to develop a liking for farm life which was to wait several years to be developed in earnest. I held a variety of jobs in Kincardine before leaving there in 1953 to spend five years in Indian Schools at Sioux Lookout, ON, Prince Albert, SK, and Wabasca, AB. It was while working in these schools that I met Willa, who hails from Gaspé, PQ., and we were married in Prince Albert.

Leaving Indian work in the spring of 1958, we were employed on a ranch south of Hardisty, AB where I was able to gain practical and valuable experience on farming and ranching operations as practiced in this part of the country and we were there until the fall of 1960 at which time we moved here to work for the Branum's. At that time the only white cows I had seen were white Shorthorn, but it did not take long to get brain-washed. I soon picked up the enthusiasm of my employer and under his expert guidance, it was not long before I was keeping records and waiting for weaning to see if this year's calf from such and such a cow would be better than last year's because she was bred to a different bull.

About a year after Ray's death, Mrs. Branum dispersed the herd which then numbered about 85 white cows, and we were fortunate in being able to purchase 20 head of females along with a bull she had recently purchased from the Char-Rouse Ranch. We felt that with performance tested cattle, we were on the right track and in the three years that we have been renting the Branum farm, we have had no cause to doubt this decision.

Together with his wife Cecile and their married sons, Mike and John, Buddy Cobb still runs one of the largest purebred Charolais herds in the United States at about 800 breeding females.

Cobb also has a Canadian "first". He was a banquet guest speaker at the Canadian Charolais Association organization meeting held in Calgary on Jan. 17, 1959. "I can't remember what I all told them at the Palliser," he said, grinning. "I just hope it wasn't a bunch of lies".

I was born on the prairies in Saskatchewan at Wisseton. Most of my childhood we were on the move as my father seemed to think the grass was greener over the hill.

I finished my schooling at Edgerton, AB in the dry thirties. I was helping my father on the farm where rain never fell and lakes and wells went dry. We headed North to look for something better and when we crossed the North Saskatchewan River we found what we were looking for. We were in cattle country with plenty of water and thousands of acres of grass.

It was here I met Gladys. She was an expert rider at the time and still is, as she won a trophy from our Gymkhana Club in 1966. We both like good horses and spend a lot of time in the saddle.

We were married in 1943. I had been in the Army a year then and spent another three years. After my discharge we went to farming and raising cattle on our own.

We tried just about every breed of cattle but weren't satisfied with what we were getting. In 1959 we read an article in the "Furrow" in which Murray Little told of having imported some Charolais and we became interested. I wrote Murray for more information and after hearing from him we were determined to give Charolais a try.

We took a trip to Jim Rawes' Ranch at Strome and bought a 7/8 bull before we left. Jim was importing from the States and that fall we purchased two bred heifers from him. We were kidded by some about our white Holsteins but when we sold our first crop of calves, they netted us $20.00 more than our Herefords. This was what we were looking for, so we kept buying and raising and now have over 200 head with Charolais breeding from 7/16 to pure bred.

We have two sons - Bobby, 20 years and Ricky, 18. They have won rate of gain and reserve champion in the 4-H with our Charolais calves.

I have enjoyed working with the other directors in the Alberta Charolais Association.

Around home I seem to keep busy as I'm President of our F.U.A. Local, Vice President of our Rural Electrification Association and Assistant Leader of our 4 -H Beef Club.

We're looking forward to getting our French Bull in the Spring. I say there's no turning back now. We have to try to make every generation of Charolais better than the last and I think every Charolais breeder is aiming at the same goal.
