Harold Halladay travelled approximately 60,000 km in 1988 buying Charolais bulls for the PFRA. Haladay, whose father George began working with the PFRA in 1938 and helped to develop the current pasture system, bought a total of about 400 Charolais bulls in 1988. In 1988 the PFRA owned 2,500 Charolais breeding bulls and leased another 900. Of all the cows in PFRA pastures, 57% were bred to Charolais bulls in 1988, a number which has stayed quite constant during the past three years.

In February 1949, I had the privilege of spending a day with Fred Turner at his ranch at Weslace, Texas. Here I had my first opportunity to see Charolais cattle and hear of their merits from the man who made the first Charolais importations of the breed from Mexico to the US. Fred Turner was one of the most enthusiastic salesmen I have ever had the pleasure of meeting. His enthusiasm for Charolais cattle ran parallel to his enthusiasm for Ford products - he was the top Ford salesman in the US for several years.

In the course of this fascinating visit with Fred Turner, I learned a lot about Charolais cattle and the people in Mexico and the US who were raising them. At that time I am sure he knew most of the breeders as well as the pedigrees of the individual cattle they were raising. I had a camera with me and took colored pictures of a number of the good Charolais bulls and cows that were then jointly owned by Fred Turner and Harl Thomas of Raymodville, Texas. These colored slides were used frequently in the ensuing years to help describe the characteristics of Charolais cattle in discussions with many groups of livestock producers in Western Canada.

Among the people that Fred Turner talked about was an individual by the name of Frank Campbell who then ranched at Ash Fork, Arizona. I decided that Frank Campbell was a Charolais breeder that I would like to meet and scheduled my travels in the direction of Ash Fork. Upon arrival at the ranch I missed Frank and his wife Floye, who were away in Mexico on Charolais business. However, I had the good fortune to meet their three sons - Hugh, Bob and Bill. The boys took me in tow and showed me the results obtained by mixing Charolais blood with a herd of several thousand good commercial Herefords under rugged range conditions. I was impressed with the cattle and the family involved with them. What I saw convinced me that Charolais cattle had a place in Canada.

Frequent visits with all the members of the Campbell family during the past 18 years have confirmed this viewpoint and produced one of the finest friendships that my wife Ruth and I have enjoyed in a lifetime of association with livestock people. Since 1955 Frank Campbell has made many Charolais cattle available to Canadian cattlemen and has made numerous visits to Canada to encourage commercial and purebred Charolais breeders.

A milestone in Canadian Charolais history that I recall was a meeting in my office at Lethbridge, in the summer of 1958 with Wayne Malmberg, his brother Max, whose tragic death occurred recently, and John Ballachey of Calgary. Plans were then made for the organization meeting of the Canadian Charolais Association which was held in Calgary in January, 1959. The growth and development of the Association since that time has been phenomenal and is a tribute to enthusiastic and energetic membership.

It is my hope that Charolais breeders will maintain the profitable factors inherent in the breed - size, rapid growth, length of body, rugged bone and scale, minimum fat cover, large eye of lean, good carcass cut-out and adaptability to Canadian conditions. I would be unfortunate if the show ring encourages over-fat, thick, compact cattle in the breed. Performance and progeny testing are valuable tools for the Charolais breeder, and they should be used to maintain and improve individual herds.

Edwin and Dawana Hilz and their family at Champion, AB are doers. They run a large grain operation, are successful cattlemen and are active in the Canadian Charolais Association activities. They become involved with Charolais much like many of today's purebred breeders - they had a Charolais bull in their commercial herd. A decision was made 11 years ago that if they could only run a small herd they had to get more revenue per cow. "We investigated the organizations and found that Charolais was always one step ahead of the rest", said Edwin.

Charolais Banner - April 1968:

I was born on the farm, not too far from our present site and after “finishing” school which didn’t take too many years during the 30’s, I worked on my fathers farm joining in on the baseball, curling and general activities of that time.

In 1947 I took some time to travel to California and then to Vancouver where I worked in a logging camp until the end of the season.

The year of 1951, I married Jean who was nursing at Redvers, and we spent the winter in BC where we both worked. After returning home we moved to Fairlight, SK where I had a garage and Massey-Harris dealership - my first lesson in buying, selling and finance. I leased the garage in 1955 and we moved to Revers.

In 1956 I purchased a cat and did oil-field work and general construction. In 1958 I rented 1,100 acres from Arm River Farms and three years later acquired another 640 acres. This, along with my own land gave us sizeable acres with the bulk of it being pasture land; I could see it was time to get into the cattle business. By this time the construction business had grown considerably so it wasn’t until 1964 that the opportunity arose. A friend of mine was selling out and moving North and I had a chance to purchase his entire herd of sixty Hereford cows, all descendants of the original Arm River Herd.

The question now was, “What do we use for a herd sire”? Wanting more size I went to Wilf Edgars Fall sale at Innisfail, AB, where I purchased two young Hereford bulls.

They didn’t develop the way I thought they should so it was at this time I started gathering information on Charolais. I had read articles on them before and kept mentioning to Jean that Charolais would sure be an opportunity for someone. I decided at this point to get a purebred bull so I wrote to Rodney to get a list of some of the top breeders in the US. On receiving the information we started south, looking at different herds, and at Litton Charolais Ranch decided on our herd sire. This of course was just the start of the “fever” and led to the purchase of a number of females.

My favorite quote:’ It’s not how big they get, it’s how fast they get big.”

Bill Hunt has lots of experience in the livestock industry. Bill has operated a good sized, successful commercial operation for many years in East Central Alberta at Endiang. He purchased some Charolais females from the Ohlers a few years ago and has since become extremely active in Charolais, particularly in the area of Performance and Progeny Testing.

Charolais Banner - April 1974

The ranch was established by Bill's Father, Harold Hunt in 1904 before the area was surveyed or settled. It has always run commercial cattle, but in addition it produced draft horses in the early days. From 1927 until 1941 it produced purebred Herefords and has produced Charolais seedstock for the last decade. The Hunt's presently run 400 head of cows of which about 2/3 are commercial and 1/3 percentage to purebred Charolais

We still occasionally hear about the "boom" days of the Charolais breed in the late 60s and early 70s. Among the "big spenders" and "high rollers", there was no equal to Nelson Bunker Hunt. The largess of the Hunt exploits on the world silver trade are legendary, but Hunt blazed a considerable trail in the purebred Charolais business also. In 1969, for instance, he spent $90,000 on Crestomer Alger 1Z, the bull that had set a yearling weight record at 1,653 lbs.

 I was born and raised on a farm at Ponoka, AB. When 19 I took over the home farm and a year later Pearl and I were married. We farmed there for four years, at which time Pearl had a re-occurrence of TB and went to the Sanatorium in Edmonton. We sold out our equipment, some cattle and put the rest of our Herefords out on shares.

I commenced work as a technician with the Lacombe Artificial Breeding Assn. and moved in with my mother at Ponoka. She and Pearl's mother shared the duties of taking care of Bob and our recent addition, Lorna.

It was during this period, after reading articles in the Canadian Cattlemen, Family Herald and US magazines, I had become interested in Charolais. We visited the Fletcher Bennetts, the late Ray Branum, Ed Lyon and Bud Tull, who all had recently imported Charolais and Charolais-cross from the US.

In the Spring of 1958, Pearl seemed to be well on the mend and town living had just about got the better of me, so we purchased the home quarter and moved to the Lacombe district. I now had my Herefords back home, so decided to cross them with Charolais using AI. The following spring, seeing my cross-calves, I was more enthused than ever. While discussing Charolais at the Ponoka Auction Mart with a farmer neighbour, the man in front overheard our conversation. On introducing himself as Orvil Rawe from Strome, he informed me that his brother, Jim Rawe, was presently in Arizona buying a carload of Charolais. He gave me the hotel that Jim was staying in, so I phoned Jim and placed an order for two 7/8 and one 3/4 heifers. The 3/4 turned out to be a non-breeder, so my money was refunded. The two 7/8 both had heifers that spring and I was in the Charolais business.

We attended the organizational meeting of the CCA on Jan. 17, 1959 in Calgary, even though we didn't actually have any Charolais. We attended the first Annual Meeting in 1960 and at the 1961 Annual Meeting I was elected to the Board of Directors. In 1962, at the meeting held in Lethbridge, I was elected Secretary-Treasurer.

The CCA office was at Maple Creek, SK with Marjorie E.F. Paton ably carrying on the duties of Recording Secretary on a part time basis. A year later, it appeared that the CCA had grown to where it was now a full time job. The Board felt that perhaps better continuity could be attained by combining the duties of Recording-Secretary and Secretary-Treasurer into one full time position. I was offered the opportunity of taking over these combined offices and after a long sleepless night we reached a decision: I accepted this offer and resigned from the Lacombe Artificial Breeding Assn., where I had been employed for over 6 years. On March 1, 1963 the CCA office was moved to our home at Lacombe with Marjorie Paton remaining on until April 1st, teaching me the various office techniques.
